

Cage update

Contributed by Eric Fritz
Friday, 23 December 2005

. . . okay, so check in with the welder at the end of October . . .

The beastie is finally in as of this last weekend,, and progressing nicely as of Wednesday. Should have everything complete and back sometime mid-to-late next week. IMO, a week and a half isn't too bad when you factor in XMAS in the middle. In the meanwhile, random assorted parts have been showing up (or, should be showing up soon). Thanks to Scott at King Motorsports, for tracking down a Racetech head restraint seat at the last minute . . . after Ryan's car finished up, we realized that there was only a few inches worth of usable clearance to the halo. I like my head and neck in the state that it's in now.